

A Word To Husbands

I wanted to write this with the husband on mind who has had a wife who has come across the heretical error of Cindy Wittkopp (Cindy W or lastblast on many forums), Cheryl Chrisman/Cheryl Daniels(cadznet and 1956ford on many forums), Stephen Wilcox, David Harrison (sealedeternal on some forums) and have fallen for the lies of these heretics.

Please understand that these wolves and liars write their garbage in such a way as to directly assault your wife emotionally. They all fully comprehend the differences between men and women, knowing that our wives are going to react emotionally, and will do so especially if they can cause any sort of confusion and concern in her about her faith and her obedience to God.

As men one of our strengths, and greatest weaknesses, is our lack of emotional response. It makes it easier to ignore these heretics, although it can, in many men, cause them to be entirely oblivious and uncaring when a wife needs an emotional response from him.

For the wife, she is an emotional being. Also her greatest asset...and her greatest flaw. In her emotion she can feel love in such an unconditional way that I doubt many men could begin to comprehend it. She can feel the most intimate of things that we men just can't imagine. This is likely the reason why women can form such wonderful bonds with other women, but is much rarer for us guys to.

This also can leave her defenseless when she is assaulted by these wolves calling themselves believers who seek to devour her and her marriage to you. Its a horrible, destructive cycle that can be almost impossible to break.

She just happens by one of these heretics websites, books, videos, etc and hears what they have to say. Even if shes not immediately affected, one dark night while shes trying to sleep she remembers the threats of hellfire and being an 'adulteress' that these heathen have brought against her. She starts to panic. Quietly at first. But it grows into something that gets out of her control.

She is confused because of how these heretics have mangled Gods word, which causes her to become emotional...which feeds her fear and confusion even more.

Soon enough she cant eat, cant sleep, cant think, cant exist outside the torment created in her own mind by the demonic teachings of these people.

Eventually you start seeing the symptoms. When she tells you about it you try to blow it off, but its much easier for you to not get immediately involved emotionally....because thats just how you are created.

It generally isnt until the wife is completely frantic that we realize something is horribly wrong.

At that point damage may already be being done to the marriage...or already have been done.

Listen brothers. If your wife has come across these doctrines please bear with her. Please understand that these heretics have worked long and hard to refine the trash they teach for maximum effect. Your wife is not the only one to have fallen for it. A great many have, Ive dealt directly with a lot of wives over the last few years...this is why this website exists... to try to undo the damage these wolves inflict.

If your wife has run the course with this and is finally at a place where she realizes it was all a lie, dear brother please be forgiving and work your marriage out. Believe me your wife isnt the only one to have gone down this path. And all of the wives Ive personally spoken to HAVE recovered. And their marriages are stronger afterward because they can KNOW they are on solid ground. They have faced the devil and won.

But you lose to these people if you give up your marriage because your wife and her behavior while she was in such spiritual turmoil. She NEEDS you now no matter how she acted when she was fighting the demons that drive this heresy. Don't give up your marriage or you have let these people win.

They are out to destroy your marriage...they really dont care how that comes about. Either by your wife leaving...or by YOU not being forgiving when she repents after realizing she was tricked.

I plead with you, brothers, do whatever it takes to save your marriages.
