

Esther & King Ahasuerus

Assertions/Conclusions of this article

This article will show that this gentile king did 'put away' his wife the queen by the actual biblical definition of putting away by sending her away/out and a Hebrew woman did marry this man after he had put away that former wife and that this marriage was used by God to literally save all of Israel.

Supporting Evidence

Firstly we understand that "putting away" is simply the act of sending away of a spouse with that intent.

Here is a short article showing briefly what BIBLICAL 'putting away' is defined as;

What is 'putting away/divorce' in Gods word?

Secondly it is a moot point that this King did not issue a writ of divorce to Vashti as he was a gentile and Mosaic law that required the writ of divorce was Hebrew law, not gentile, given by God thru Moses for Hebrew husbands to obey. Any who say that no writ of divorce was given, therefore no divorce occurred, simply show how unstudied they are in this matter and are, in our opinion, grasping at straws. The Gentiles were not under Hebrew law, Moses could not command a gentile king to give a writ of divorcement any more than the United States Govt can tell an Ethiopian man to give a divorce decree. It was out of Moses jurisdiction entirely.

The ACTIONS that this king took against his wife in sending her out/away, and subsequently replacing her, very accurately fit every detail of the ACT of putting away a wife to marry another.
